Dear Mike:

Having worked as a CEO for three sport NGBs under the Olympic umbrella and as the president of the board of directors of another, it is easy for me to say that there is no doubt of the robustness of ESIX's knowledge in striving to protect the sport marketplace through the use of insurance. As I have moved from sport to sport, I have found inferior insurance placements and moved ESIX in to assess the quality of the product. Inevitably, ESIX, after having completed a comprehensive analysis, finds areas of concern and then makes a placement with total coverage providing better protection often at a lesser premium cost. There is just no other group I would engage in this very important element of preserving sport and protecting those who are sport practitioners.

Sincerely,

Steve Locke
